the award winning poet weaves a tapestry of literary heritage and intimate reflection as she pays tribute to women artists and mentors and circles the ongoing mysteries of friendship love art and loss in this powerful gathering of poems about her own influencers as well as poems on dadaist artist m²ret oppenheim and the young choreographer lauren lovette brenda shaughnessy dwells in memories of the women who set her on her artistic path in the title poem she explores the eternal quality of an intense touchstone relationship with tanya about whom she writes everyone s not you to me worth loving once why not now we all have our own tanya and in this book we meet friends mentors sisters lovers who inhabit a verse classroom where shaughnessy s passion for literature forged in her own formative studies as in the poem coursework is our teacher in flowing stair step tercets shaughnessy leads us down into her generative core exposing moments of spiritual and intellectual awakening her love of art and the written word and her sense of the life force itself which is ignited by the conversation across time and space with other women emotions are real but for some persons they express them best on paper tanya began writing as a teenager as an emotional release she grew up in jamaica at a time where the culture dictated that children were to be seen but not heard her parents worked hard to provide a sound education and a decent living condition for her and her siblings however it was not the norm to have frequent meaningful conversations with them in many households at the time when parents spoke to their children it was mainly about following rules tanya found an outlet for self expression in the creative arts of drawing and writing she shares years of emotions in this book over a hundred poems of passion and love for the woman who changed my life forever best known as a musician and a spoken word performer poet tanya davis has now taken to the page with at first lonely in this collection she reflects on life s many passages falling in love and out the search for personal truth the search for home davis s style is one of a kind a blend of contemporary phrasing with profound personal expression but her message is universal over two million people have watched how to be alone a film adaptation of her poem created by independent filmmaker andrea dorfman tanya davis poetry challenges the intellect and touches deep places in the heart when a thought becomes a wordsong its transformation into verbal art is an imaginative one my candle flame emblemizes transformative imagination when one learns from a master one becomes connected on a deep level this surely happened in your case as you not only learned but integrated the teachings to the point where you could generate your own rivkah slonim education director the rohr chabad center for jewish student life at binghamton university the late rabbi adin even israel steinsaltz 1937 2020 was indeed a master a prolific author translator and scholar who as interpreter of judaica is unsurpassed in modern times the import of his work is universal among his commentaries on spiritual treasures was an interpretation of the tanya by schneur zalman of liadi 1745 1813 the great moralist and mystic the steinsaltz tanya three part version in english 2003 2005 2007 is extraordinary in prose style in fullness of elucidation in wisdom of both mind and heart and in spiritual depth and scope as it abounds in a wealth of anecdotal and philosophic traditions from the entire range of hasidic mystical literature reading it i was seized with a kind of fervor and in 13 days wrote 108 poems interpreting passages i admired from all three volumes what i offer you is a book of musical compositions that happen to have words rather than prescribed pitches every poem in the book will show you my care for craft and joy in musical rhythm let me be the universe inside you to make you feel denser than the world outside in a world full of magic and mysteries did i make it more look like a fairytale ummm no tanya always thinks that the reality of life when written on sheets read by different eyes makes it a tale this book has something for everyone not dividing it into various segments she wishes to highlight that even if we divide our goods and bad into different phases all we miss is to count them as a whole appreciate them for bringing us what we are today because if we haven t cried we never knew who can make us cry and who wipes them who never brings them if we never laughed our heart out we never met the union which unite us to ourselves we all have different types of rain still what we search for is an umbrella the moment we lose our shine we wish for sun to tell us are meant to shine maybe her tries of telling everything ends after certain pages but your universe has no end no boundaries so move on for your voyage to share words and bring new stories its ok not all stories are happy
